His words paint colorful images that breathe life onto the pages of the book--we smell the aroma of the sweet potatoes roasted in the fire place--we close our eyes and feel the cool breeze created by the cracks in the walls of the uninsulated house and strain to see by the dim kerosene lamp--we taste the Grandma Kellys scrumptious pinto beans and cornbread - we take the journey with him. This story of a struggle is creatively told. Raymon takes the reader on a vicarious journey to the cotton fields of North Carolina, many of us recall, as he wishes, our on cotton fields- we are inspired!
